Capital in Electric Lighting. From the Louisville Commercial. In the electric lighting field the total capital invested in the United States is given as over $500,000,000. The number of plants, public and private, is over 10,000. The number of motors in use is estimated at 500,000, and their value at about $100, 000,000. The electrical apparatus used in running is estimated at $100,000,000, and the value of the electrical elevator industry will probably not fall short of $15,000,000. The most important of all the electric in dustries, however, is that of electric railways. In this field the investment is very great, and in the United States is represented by a capitalization of over $700,000, 000. The number of trolley cars in use is now over 25,000, and these run over 12,000 miles of track. The electric railways represent more than 90 per cent of all the street and suburban railroads of the country.

street and suburban railroads of the country.

The aggregate of all the capital invested in electric lighting, electric railways and electric power is about $1,500,000,000,000, and this does not include the value of establishments that manufacture the machinery and apparatus. As many of these are among the largest industrial enterprises in the world, and as nearly all are concerns of considerable magnitude, it is evident that their combined capital will run up into large figures. run up into large figures.

From the Boston Herald. The postal service of the United States

costs $9,000,000 a year above receipts, while that of Great Britain yields a profit of over $14,000,000, that of France nearly $10,000,-000, that of Germany $6,000,000, that of Russia $8,000,000, and that of even India and Japan $1,500,000. About the only other and Japan $1,500,000. About the only other nations whose postal service does not pay expenses are Canada, Norway, Siam, Chile, Peru, Bulgaria and Bolivia. This deficit in the United States is largely caused by an interpretation of the law that carries in the mails an enormous amount of printed matter at a sum greatly below the cost of so doing. BAR HARBOR, Me., July 28, 1897. The motto of the new Ladies' Club might properly be "If 't'were done 't'were well 't'were done quickly." No sooner had they decided-"jumped at a conclusion," the men would call it-that they wanted a club on the shore, than, presto, it is theirs I am pleased to announce that on Tuesday afternoon the "Ladies' Club" held an overwhelmingly successful reception to 300 guests in brilliant array, and that no more auspicious occasion has been known for many seasons. The pretty rooms, including a tea and music room, a card room, hung with a serial picture story of a Spanish bullfight; a writing room, comfortably arranged for either serious work or play, and the dressing rooms upstairs, were all set with ferns and flowers. The tables were spread with punch, tea and lemonade an orchestra played "catchy" airs, and Kebo Valley Club held the customary dinner dance Saturday night. Mr. Edmund Pendleton presided, and others who gave dinners were Mr. Gist Blair, Mr. Frank Ellis and Dr. Seely. In the theater after finner dancing took place, many Washington society people being present. The Danish minister, Mr. Constantin Brun. Dr. Wagner of the Austro-Hungarian le-gation, M. Brandao of the Brazilian legagation, M. Brandao of the Brazilian legation, M. Trubert of the French embassy. M. Trubert was guest at dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Pendieton. Miss Nathalie Barney, wearing a white gown of graceful design, having a picturesque scarf of scarlet that floated about her as she danced, was undoubtedly belle of the evening. Monday evening the Malvern Hotel gave a hop at which all the smart set were guests. Miss Ethel Davies of New York, niece of Mrs. Bradley-Martin of New York, and frequently visitor of her aunt, Mrs.

and frequently visitor of her aunt, Mrs. Rochester of Washington, was among the dancers. Miss Davies had come up from Newport with Mr. and Mrs. John Drexel of Philadelphia on their fine yacht, the Sultana, a day before.

NOTABLE ENTERTAINMENTS Storms Have Caused Much Damage Along the Beach.

> Special Correspondence of The Evening Star ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 29, 1807. The past week has been signally fatal to all forms of outdoor enjoyment. Rain and cold, moisture and clouds have kept hotel guests closely confined to the protecting plazzas, and ample roofs of their domiciles. Hundreds of tons of sand were washed away, and at least three bathing grounds suffered incalculable loss by the ravage of old ocean on Monday and Tuesday Roofs of bath houses were torn off, and the broad planking on the walk was ripped up by the waves.

The Brown University boys, who are giving concerts along the coast, were in town from Saturday until Tuesday, and gave entertainments in all the leading hotels. The full-dress hops Saturday evening were brilliant affairs. Many of the guests were Washingtonians.

Correspondence of The Evening Star POINT LOOKOUT, Md., July 29, 1897. No more picturesque place could be imagined for camping or cottaging than Point Lookout, the farthest extremity of Maryland, where the Potomac river joins Chesapeake bay. There is no hotel here, nor are the means of getting to the Point the test, but in spite of this fact the place is always a favorite summering soot for Washingtonians, and to a less extent for Baltimore people There is the spiendid view. One of the interesting things at Point Lookout is the lighthouse. There is a government wharf here, and a number of storage houses which are used in the buoy service. All buoys in the lighthouse service are taken up at least once a year and repainted. At this is quite a central point, large numbers of buoys are brought here through the summer to be painted and repaired. Owing to the trequent heavy water it is difficult to keep small sailing craft at Point Lookout. There is no harbor, and all the boats have to be beached on the sand when not in use.

Although there are but a few scattered trees nearer than half a mile from the Point, this place has nevertheless always been a popular one for campers. There is a daily mail, and although communication with the city is somewhat difficult, pro-duce is brought in from the surrounding country by the farmers, and camping is made both easy and pleasant, Carl C. Mueller and A. B. Parson were the first Mueller and A. B. Parson were the first to take possession of the place with their tents this summer. Their camp is within a stone's throw of the lighthouse, and they have since been joined by Harry J. Brown, Roy Burnham and James S. Bassett. Orton Meigs will also be down a little later. The boys are having a first class time. They are as brown as Sandwich Islanders, equally hungry, and equally indifferent as to what they cat. No time is wasted, and

A Woman's Mining Outfit. From the St. Louis Republic. An interesting phase of the Klondyke craze is the frantic determination of many young women to go. All the expeditions are besieged by women applicants. A woman who has roughed it on the Klondyke says that her sisters who go to the far north will need the following outfit: One medicine case, filled on the advice of a good physician; two pairs of extra heavy, all-wool blankets; one small pillow, one fur robe, one warm shawl, one fur coat, easy fitting; three warm woolen dresses, with comfortable bodices and skirts knee length, flannel lined; three pairs of knickers or bioomers to match the dresses; three suits of heavy, all-wool underwear; three warm flannel night dresses, four pairs of knitted woolen stockings; one pair of rubber boots; three gingham aprons that reach from neck to knees; small roll of flannel, for insoles, wrapping the feet and bandages; a sewing kft, such toilet articles as are absolutely kit, such toilet articles as are absolutely necessary, including some skin unguent to protect the face from the ley cold; two light blouses or shirt waists for summer wear; one oilskin blanket in which to wrap her effects, to be secured at Juneau or St. Michael; one fur cape; two pairs of fur gloves, two pairs of fur seal moccasins and two pairs of wet weather moccasins. It is added that the female gold hunter may safely dispense with tight lacing, as this would retard travel over the mountains.

The publication of this list of things necessary to a weman who would seek her fortune on the Klondyke has dampened the ardor of some of the would-be miners, who figure that the outfit would cost about $700.

They Wanted to Be Remarried.

From the Kansas City Journal. Just before Probate Judge Herr closed his office Saturday night he was paid a visit by a very strange couple. The visitors were a middle-aged man and woman, The man asked the judge if he would issue them a marriage license and perform the ceremony. It is needless to say that the judge answered in the affirmative, for this is his business. The man gave his name as G. C. Hopkins, and his compan-ion answered to the name of Lillian Hop-ion answered to the name of Lillian Hopkins.

"Are you related to each other?" inquired the judge.

"Slightly," responded the visitor. "We are man and wife."

Judge Herr naturally asked him his reasons for being married again, and the stranger related a very remarkable story.
He stated that they were married five years ago in the city of Chicago, and have celebrated their wedding anniversary each year by getting remarried.

"My wife and I entered into an agreement," said he, "when we were first united in the holy bonds of wedlock to the effect that at the expiration of the first year our marriage should become void, and if we wanted to live together longer we should get married again. Our adventure with Cupid has proven a happy one to both, and for five consecutive years we have lived together and have been married each year."
